PARTY VS. INDIVIDUALISM.

Frankfort stands a good chance to secure the Democratic State Convention and if the fight is made along sane lines it will be a good thing for the city. Frankfort has ample facilities for entertaining the delegates and the Capital of the State is an appropriate place to hold the convention. But no one should work with the idea of getting even with Louisville. A movement based on pique will bring no good to anyone and will result in a bitter fight that will do the party harm. It is time that all Democrats were looking to the good of the party and individual interests should be put aside.

It is to be regretted that differences have occurred within the ranks but if the Democratic party hopes to carry the election this fall they must present a solid front. It matters little to the rank and file of the party where the convention is held, but it is of vital interest to them as to the manner in which it is conducted. Any man who uses his influence to the party to further strife and discontent is as much an enemy to the party as the man who refuses to support its nominees.

The Frankfort Printing Company has just installed a large Miehle press with a maximum capacity of 2,500 impressions an hour. Other improvements have also been made and the people of Frankfort are invited to call and inspect the plant.

Many a good Elk will leave Frankfort during the next few weeks and lucky is the lodge that takes them into their midst.

The many friends of W. T. Grayot are pleased to know that he has been appointed Secretary of the Board of Prison Commissioners. Mr. Grayot is not only one of the most popular men in Frankfort but he is also one of the most competent men that could be found to fill any position.

That's right, Bro. Walton, give the reporters thunder. But don't forget to put in your bill for ten cents per copy for your papers should you supply the members of the General Assembly with papers at the next session, even if the Auditor does cut the bill in half.

CONTEST

LOST BY VICTOR NEWCOMB.

In an opinion handed down Thursday morning by Judge Carroll, the Court of Appeals affirmed the judgment of the Jefferson Circuit Court in the case involving the construction of the will of H. D. Newcomb. The court here holds that Victor Newcomb is not entitled to any part of the trust fund of $200,000 left by H. D. Newcomb, and says the lower court was right in determining that the money should go to the executors of H. Dalton Newcomb. The Fidelity Trust Company, which has the trust in charge, were made defendant in the lower court. The case settles a question involving the large estate of H. D. Newcomb.

The act of 1906, which requires property to be listed for taxation in order that the title may be sustained was upheld again today in the case of the Kentucky Union Company against the Commonwealth on appeal from Leslie county, but the court decides the case on technicalities and does not go into the merits of the controversy.

In the case of J. T. Thomas against Ellsworth Woods on appeal from Kenton county, the court holds, Commissioner Clay writing the opinion, that in cities of the second class two weeks must elapse between the passing of an ordinance by the two boards of the General Council. In the case in point the ordinance providing for the improvement of a street was passed by both boards in three days.

HINTS

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Baked Fish, Spanish Style.

Prepare any fish suitable for baking in the usual manner and stuff it with a potato dressing, seasoned with a small amount of garlic. When the fish is nearly cooked, pour over it a sauce made of two cups of chopped ripe tomatoes, a tablespoonful of butter, salt to taste and the pulp two Chile peppers.

Mexican Rarebit.

Melt a tablespoonful of butter in a chafing dish. When well heated add a tablespoonful of Mexican pepper pulp, a half teaspoonful of mustard and a little salt. To this add a half pound of cheese cut in small pieces. When the cheese is melted stir in slowly three or four tablespoonfuls of milk, and then add one beaten egg. The mixture should be stirred constantly while cooking. When sufficiently thickened, serve on small squares of toasted bread.

Luncheon Ham.

Fill a medium-sized baking dish with alternate layers of dry bread crumbs and finely chopped ham. Cover with two cups milk, mixed with three well-beaten eggs. Salt if required and bake thirty minutes in dish suitable to place on a table.

Gingerbread.

One cup New Orleans molasses, one even teaspoon soda, one-fourth teaspoon each of ginger, nutmeg, cinnamon, one-half cup sugar, one teaspoon butter. Beat well together and add one cup sour cream or milk. Stir in flour so you can pour batter in tins. Bake in slow oven.

BANQUET

TO KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

HONOR OF MEMBERS

The Frankfort Chapter rendered music during the evening in the reception hall behind a screen of palms and ferns. The folding doors between parlor and dining room were thrown open and one long table, the length of these rooms was used and was beautifully decorated with cut glass and silver candelabra holding red candles. A red carnation was placed at each plate. Thirty guests enjoyed the hospitality of the host.

The menu consisted of the following courses:

Blue Points
Celery Almonds Olives
Bouillon en Tasse
Fillet of Black Bass Saratoga Chips
Larded Tenderloin
Potatoes Green Peas
Fruit Salad
Broiled Spring Chicken on Toast
Sherry Wine Asparagus Tips
Lettuce and Tomato Salad
Ice Cream
Cheese Crackers
Demi Tasse Cigars

Following the banquet Mr. Sower, who acted as toastmaster, called upon several members who made short talks. Father Thos. S. Major feeling ly handed each of the guests of honor a small bunch of forget-me-nots and they in return responded with a few remarks.

The toastmaster then called upon Mr. Wm. B. O'Connell, who made the principal talk of the evening.

Mr. O'Connell said:

Rev. Father, the past Mr. President, the present Mr. President, the brother from Shelbyville, and brothers:

I blush at the introductory remarks of the toastmaster in introducing me this evening.

It is a dangerous thing to have the reputation of a speaker; you can never tell how your hearers will take it, and what will result therefrom. Several years ago, in 1895, I believe, another distinguished American made a speech in Chicago, and he has been running ever since.

At the last meeting of this club, when I made a speech, the greatest one I have ever heard; I clothed my remarks in words of "burning" eloquence to the assembly of tobacco smokers and being an "Eklity" man, I stood my ground, and so I am here to address you tonight.

The enthusiasm and eclat occasioned by my former and best effort, exemplified to a great degree those cardinal virtues taught by the order of Charity, Brotherly Love and Patriotism, and the forbearance of my brothers, for if I had delivered that speech before any other audience in Kentucky I would have been arrested for a breach of the peace.

I recall that the occasion of the club's former visit to and entertainment in this hospitable home was marked by a bloodless conflict, almost international in its scope and which for the moment threatened the disruption of the club and the annihilation of every thing in the room, that wasn't nailed down, and impressing on the mind of our genial host the great necessity of being "on" when this club "pulled off" its fifth degree.

The evening has been one of great pleasure to us all, in fact, a happy mingling of regret and pleasure, a regret that such a delightful evening, like Tenyson's brook, could not go on forever, and a pleasure that the host of the evening—the man of the hour—Brother John R. Sower.

This is, I believe, one of the many farewell receptions to be tendered our Trust brothers, who in a few days will shake the dust and germs of this city from their shoes, and hie themselves to a city made famous by the Frank Fehr Brewing Company and Chris Mueller.

There is always a tinge of sadness connected with partings. The parting with our money is not pleasant, the parting of one's hair in the middle is abominable, and at the parting of ways, one is liable to take the wrong road.

This evening, the to be, absent brothers, have in words of pathos and eloquence, told us how they regret to leave this good old Frankfort town, and the stay-with-us-brothers have thrown at them choice bouquets plucked from the garden of oratory, and the beloved pastor of his congregation, in address beautiful in sentiment has presented to the retiring president a bouquet of forget-me-nots. Now, I am right, but I know of no other people in this city who have the chance to leave the city without a bouquet of forget-me-nots.

south on Mondays, Wednesdays and Friday, and trying to get back on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, in their new home well it is sometimes worse, for street car service is mighty uncertain in Louisville. And my happy and jolly friend, brother Gorman, can go to one of the parks of the city, where they have baby racks, buy a few balls (high ones) take a throw, and write back to us here in the settlement, "how he missed the children."

But to be serious for a while. City life is a great thing. "What wonderful opportunities not only for pleasure, but for the accumulation of wealth the environment of a large city affords. There great corporations, which control the commerce of nations are organized and put in motion: There vast and complicated systems of railway have their centre, and like the shining threads of the spiders loom, fret a continent with lines of steel, and weaves the warp of civilization around the golden thrones of money kings. Such environment quicken the brain, and give power to grasp financial problems, but they chill many of the better and nobler impulses of the heart, and make men cold and indifferent to the pure and beautiful sentiments of life."

I can not close this rambling talk, without paying tribute to the charming wife of our host, to whom we are indebted so much for this delightful repast, and who in exquisite taste has changed this always beautiful into a veritable fairy garden of loveliness, in our honor.

So here's a toast to our wives—and sweethearts—On an occasion like this what could we do without the splendid help of you. We must always, your aid invoke, You are the Queens of our homes—but you keep us broke.
